HOSPITAL EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS • Oct. 20 & 21, 2009

OVERVIEW

This program is for all hospital emergency response personnel and community health agencies that may need to interact with hospitals during an emergency.

Emergency management plans are meant to be living documents — and good emergency management plans make good business sense. Whether a facility is accredited by The Joint Commission or not, many of the standards will likely become national standards. This program is designed to help demystify Joint Commission standards and assist participants in identifying and overcoming barriers to implementation of a successful emergency plan within their facility.

SPEAKER

Joseph Capiello, BSN, MA, is chair of Capiello & Associates and the former vice president for accreditation field operations at The Joint Commission. He spent 10 years at The Joint Commission directing key internal functions, as well as serving as a surveyor. He led Joint Commission initiatives on emergency management and disaster response, personally debriefing nearly 300 healthcare organizations following disasters. He testified before Congress following his experiences with Hurricane Katrina and before the National Transportation Safety Board following the evacuation of Houston during Hurricane Rita. He is a frequently requested speaker on both the national and international stage and is a contributing author to several publications on emergency preparedness and response. Before joining The Joint Commission, Capiello served as a project manager for a national healthcare reengineering firm and as an executive director of a large academic medical center. He has more than 30 years of diverse experience in delivery system integration, operations reengineering, strategic planning, healthcare policy development, and emergency planning.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Hospital Emergency Planners & Management, Public Health, Safety Net Clinics, EMS, County Emergency Management, Hospital and Clinic CEOs

OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of the seminar, participants should be able to:

1. Understand the importance of preparing for a disaster.
2. Understand The Joint Commission's (TJC) more significant Emergency Preparedness Standards
3. Understand how TJC Emergency Preparedness Standards may impact Center for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) standards, Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) standards, as well as other National emergency preparedness standards and how this impact may potentially affect their organization.
4. Understand basic planning tools and templates available.
5. Identify how to realistically put their organizations' emergency preparedness plan into operation.
6. Identify the biggest challenges to effectively putting an emergency preparedness plan into operation.
7. Identify strategies to overcome obstacles related to implementing an effective emergency preparedness program.
8. Identify key "Best Management Practices" related to implementing an effective emergency preparedness program.
9. Understand how social media tools (twitter, facebook etc.) can be utilized to manage an emergency.
10. Identify the communication networks available to urban rural and frontier regions.
